Sean Hassett · Philadelphia · hand-cut mirror and acrylic

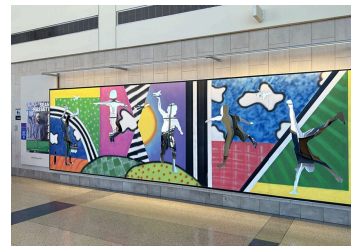

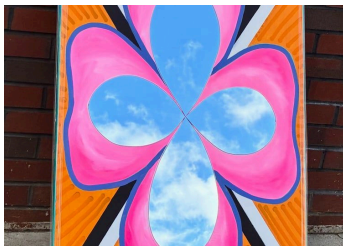

PRESS KIT · 2026

BIO

Sean Hassett, known as irregular, is a Philadelphia artist who grew up in Darby, where he first took to the word that became his name. Largely self-taught, he began making art in 2012 and has shown work in Rittenhouse Square since 2014. His interest in reflective, fragmented surfaces traces back to his grandfather's stained-glass workshop.

Hand-cut mirror is his main material, set into acrylic paintings and mosaics so that viewers see themselves in the work. He has made well over a thousand pieces. Since 2020 his "irregular" tag has appeared across the city, from West Philly to Center City.

"The viewer can see themselves in the art."
